About the Conference

The conference celebrates three hundred years of Freemasonry since the formation of the Grand Lodge of England in 1717. There will be lectures by over 45 speakers from across the world on a variety of aspects of the history of Freemasonry, the role it has played in society and the sources available to Masonic historians. The aim has been to produce a lively programme that will have something to inform and entertain everyone and that will show the breadth of this fascinating subject and the problems that absorb and puzzle those who study it today.
