PAPERS AND ESSAYS.Some Notes on the Legends of Masonry. By W. H. Rylands, F.S.A. 4

Lodges of Speculative or "Accepted" Masons were in existence at the beginning of the XVII. Century; Connected in London with the trade guild of Masons, 4; Early Christian Churches were built by the Operative Masons in imitation of Solomon's Temple; Speculative Masons naturally symbolized the same building, 5; No reason to suppose that such symbolizing originated in XVIII. Century, 6; "Old Charges," attempt to fix date of first compilation; Some regulations could not have been made earlier than XII. or XIII. Century; Were certainly compiled for Operative Masons; Although in London they had probably passed into the hands of the "Accepted" Masons in early part of XVII. Century, 6; "Constitutions" of 1722; General increase in number of copies of "Old Charges" about 1600; "Halliwell" poem, 7; "Cooke" MS., 8; Objects of the "Old Charges"; Possibly written by the priests; Probably in answer to the "Writ for Returns" (1388), 9; Difficulties in way of this theory considered, 9; Discussion by W. J. Hughan, 10; J. W. Horsley, 11; E. Conder, jun., 13; F. J. W. Crowe, 15; Hugh James, 15.

Masonic Certificates of the Netherlands. By F. J. W. Crowe ... 17

Certificates issued by Grand Orient, 17; ditto, with Seals of daughter Lodges, 19; "Rose Croix" diplomas, 22; "Elect Master" Certificates, 24; "Upper Elect Master" Certificates, 25; Certificates for Belgium, 26; Certificates of Honorary Membership, 26.

The Degrees of Pure and Ancient Freemasonry. By R. F. Gould 28

I.—PROEMIAL.

References to earlier papers on Degrees and Symbolism; Opinions of Hayter Lewis and Albert Pike on Masonic Symbolism, 28.

II.—ARGUMENT.

Degrees prior to 1717; No English Speculative Lodge Minutes exist earlier than that date; Although Dr. Plot refers to the spread of Speculative Masonry in 1696; Minutes of early Scottish Lodges refer to only one degree, 29; Steele's reference to "signs and tokens" in the "Tatler" (1709); Dr. Manningham on "Scots" degrees (1757), 30; Harleian MS. (1665); Sir Thomas Dugdale; Language of Signs among the Hebrews and Eleusinia; Secret forms of the Cabalists, Hermetical Philosophers and Rosicrucians, 31.

III.—1717-1738.

"Constitutions" of 1723 refer to two degrees only, although Anderson's contemporaries understood them to refer to three, 32; Differences in the rituals of "Ancients" and "Moderns"; That of the former adopted by United Grand Lodge in 1813; Theory of one degree originated in Germany, 33; MSS. destroyed in 1720 may have been early "operative" rituals; Dr. Stukeley initiated in 1721; Two degrees certainly worked in England prior to 1723; The terms "Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason" introduced by Anderson from Scotland, 34; Evidence to be obtained from Spurious Rituals; "A Mason's Confession"; "Sloane" MS. 35; "The Mason's Examination"; "Masonry Dissected," 36; "Gormogon" manifestoes; Minutes of "Philo-Musicæ et Architecturæ Societas," 37; Repeal of O.R. XIII.; Francis Drake at York (1726); "Masters'" Lodge at Swan and Rummer; Samuel Pritchard a visitor, 38; Unpopularity of Dr. Anderson; Hogarth's "Mystery of Masonry," 39; References to Spurious Rituals in Grand Lodge Minutes, 40; "Worthy Society of Honorary Free-Masons, 41; Pennell's Irish Constitutions (1730); Criticism of Dr. Crawley's Notes thereon, 42; Three degrees conferred in Paris (1733); References to degrees in By-laws of London Lodges (1732), 43; "Scotch Masons" Lodge and "Masters'" Lodges, 44; "Pass'd Masters" in Bath (1733); Degrees in Lincoln (1734); Pocket Companion, Dublin (1735), 45; Degrees in Scotland (1735); Degrees in Paris and Sweden (1737); Ramsay's Oration, 46; Translations of "Masonry Dissected," 47; "Constitutions" of 1738, 48; Dassigny's "Serious and Impartial Enquiry" (1744), mentions Royal Arch, 49.

IV.—1740-1813.

SOME EARLY IRISH CERTIFICATES AND THEIR STORY.

Few Irish Certificates in Existence bearing dates prior to 1800; Reasons for scarcity, 69; Irish Grand Lodge was the first to issue Certificates, though Private Lodges had issued them still earlier, 69; The first engraved Certificates were authorised by the Grand Lodge of the "Moderns" (1756); Importance of Certificates as a means of identification during the existence of the rival Grand Lodges, 70; United Grand Lodge (1813) adopted the distinguishing features of Irish and "Ancient" Certificates, 70.

PAPERS AND ESSAYS.—Continued.

The Templar Legends in Freemasonry. By W. J. Chetwode
Crawley ... 45, 146, 221

I. TEMPLARIA DISCRETA.

The Genesis of the Idea which seeks to connect the Original Order of The Temple with Masonic Knight Templars, 45: The Order of the Temple and Philippe le Bel; The claims and power of the Templars: The falling away from original ideals: Charges of impiety and depravity, 46: Philippe compelled to suppress the Templars for reasons of State: The methods adopted, 47; Knight Templars v. Knight Hospitallers; Bitter rivalry between the two Orders, 48: Confusion of the two Orders common in Great Britain; Uncertainty as to the identity of Saint John, the Patron Saint, 49: The Order of Knight Hospitallers as Knights of Malta, 50: The Knights of Malta in no way connected with the Masonic Knights of Malta, or Mediterranean Pass, or St. Paul, 51; The Order of Christ, in Portugal, 52.

PAGE.

II. TEMPLARIA HODIERNA.

Latter-day Ceremonial systems, 53: The Continental (or K-H) system, formed as a Degree of Vengeance, and shewing the awakening of a dormant Order of the Temple, now represented by degrees of the A. and A. Rite, 54; The Anglo-American (or H.K.T.) System formed to remind its members of the Christian inter-communion that bound together the Knights of old; and worked under assumed authority of Craft Warrants in Ireland, America, 55; and Scotland, 56: Dunckerley's Organization; The Army Lodges at Boston, 1769, 57: The practice under the Grand Lodges of the Antients, of Ireland, and of Scotland: The position of the Grand Lodge of the Moderns, 58; Influence of Irish working in the Army Lodges; The degree of Red Cross Knight, and other degrees, in the Templar Sequence, 59.

III. TEMPLARIA COMMENTICIA.

The Chevalier Ramsey, and his supposed influence on the Higher Degrees, 60; His Oration, 61; His connection with Freemasonry, 62; His supposed adherence to the Jacobite cause disproved, 63; Baron von Hund and the Order of the Strict Observance, 63; The traditional History, 64; The pretended succession of Grand Masters, 65; Von Hund's Masonic career, 66; His claims shewn to be without foundation, 70. Four forms of the Templar Legend: i. The Irish Version, 1793; The Templar degree worked in Craft Lodges, 146; and Craft Lodges formed in Ireland for conferring the degree, 147; Similarity of practice among all English-speaking Freemasons except those under the Grand Lodge of the Moderns, 148; The sequence of degrees, culminating in High Knight Templar, 150; The incorporation of the Rose-Croix degree, 151; A close connection between the craft in America and in Dublin; Lodges of Irish Origin in Charleston and Baltimore, 152; Statutes of the Grand Encampment of Munster, 1793, 153; Indications of ceremonial: The Compact of 1873, and its proposed alterations, 155. Templaria resarta: Orders issued in Ireland in 1838; English Regulations of 1853; Alterations in Scotland in 1843, 156; Development in America, all tending to divest the Templar Order of a Masonic connection, 157. ii. The French Legend, 1810; The Ordre du Temple organised on exclusively French lines, 157; Its Grand Master, Bernard Raymond Palaprat, 158; The Manuel of the Order published in 1810; The Charter of Transmission, 163; The Statutes, and Relics, 165; The introduction of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite into Paris by the Comte de Grasse-Tilley, and its effect upon the Ordre du Temple, 170; Modifications in the Order as indicated by the Manuel of 1817, 171; The Order antagonistic to Freemasonry, 179; Its pretended jurisdiction, 180. First mention of cypher writing in connection with the Charter of Transmission: Henri Grégoire and his Histoire des Sectes Religieuses, 1828, 221; Death of the Order in 1840, 223. iii. The Scottish Legend, 1837; The Templar degree first introduced into Scotland from the Early Grand Encampment of Ireland; The admission of Dr. James Burnes into the Ordre du Temple, in Paris, and his creation of Priors in Scotland and elsewhere, 224. iv. The Scottish Legend, 1843; Sir Sidney Smith stated to have succeeded Palaprat as Grand Master of the Ordre du Temple in Paris, 229;

PAGE.

The French Legend repudiated in Scotland, and a Scottish line of descent claimed; The influence of James Linning Woodman, 231; of Alexander Deuchar, and of W. E. Aytoun: The later Scottish Legend considered, 232; The Young Pretender claimed as Grand Master, 233; A disclaimer of Masonic connection, 234.

IV. TEMPLARIA SEROTINA.

Templar Legends under all English-speaking jurisdictions originated from the Early Grand Encampment of Ireland; and except for some Continental modifications remained unaltered until 1865-70: The main motives actuating those who added Templar to Masonic degrees were Patriotism and Christianity, 235.

The Antiquity of Freemasonry. By J. Walter Hobbs	83
The Antiquity of Freemasonry based upon 'Time Immemorial,' 83; Confusion caused by attempts to prove it from the Creation, 84; No direct, unequivocal claim to such origin in the old MSS., 86; The claim only arose in the XVIII. Century: Conflicting claims for the origin of Freemasonry considered, 87; The most reasonable is an origin from, or analogous to, the Craft Guilds; Need for co-ordinated research on a definite basis without fiction or imagination, 91. Comments by Lionel Vibert, 91; Gordon Hills, 92; W. J. Williams, 93; W. B. Hextall, 96; W. A. Wigram, 98; J. S. M. Ward, 99; C. F. Sykes, 103; A. F. Calvert, 104; A. J. Dazeley, 105; F. W.
